AARP Community Challenge Takes Quick Action

AARP Funds 89 Quick Action Community Projects to Make Places More Livable

WASHINGTON, D.C. — AARP announces 89 winners in all 50 states and the District of Columbia for its first-ever AARP Community Challenge, investing nearly $780,000 to create change and improve quality of life for people of all ages in communities across the nation. The winning projects range from low-cost, short-term actions such as the creation of temporary park spaces and murals to more sizable efforts such as the development of intergenerational playgrounds. AARP received almost 1,200 applications for Community Challenge funds, resulting in a highly competitive selection process. All projects are set to be completed by November 1, 2017.

“Great communities require careful planning and time, but these quick action projects can give community leaders the motivation and momentum to create greater change.” said Nancy LeaMond, AARP Executive Vice President of Community, State and National Affairs.

Each project will deliver on one or all of the following:

- Improve social connections through the built environment benefiting people of all ages and abilities in the community.
- Expand opportunities for all residents, such as job, volunteer, and educational/training opportunities.
- Drive inclusive community engagement and interaction across a diverse population.

Three of the 89 projects will receive additional support through the AARP and Team Better Block partnership including support with project design, city department negotiations, and organizing the community around project objectives. These three projects are located in Ft. Worth TX; Buffalo, NY; and Fort Wayne, IN.
